

This is a sketch of what I attempt to do with my pumpkin plants to get a large pumpkin. There's nothing set in stone though, and I often try something a little different each year depending on how the previous year went. In general, giant pumpkins like a lot of water & rich soil, but be careful not to overdo the water & fertilizer. A steady supply of both are ideal. Organic fertilizers such as composted manure tend to supply a steady supply of nutrients. Ron Hoffman

